Dedication

We are proud to dedicate this annual to the members of our faculty who have volunteered to serve in the armed forces of the United States. Mr. Borelli, our art instructor, is now a first class petty officer in the Construction Battalion of the U. S. N. R. Mr. Cardwell, English teacher and assistant coach, is in the Army Air Corps Reserve preparing to be a flying instructor. Miss Henry, dean of girls and teacher of mathematics, is now an ensign in the Women's Reserve, U. S. N. R., and is receiving advanced instruction at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Mr. Dusel, head of the English department, is a staff sergeant in the Army Air Corps and is now at Officer Candidate School in Florida. These people worked in peace time to carry on our democracy by education and are now helping to insure democracy for the future by devoting their skills to the war effort.

VERNON A. DUNLAVY, DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT

This year our traditional school has left us. In its place we have a changing curriculum and an ever-changing personnel in classes and teaching staff. It is difficult to face the tremendous challenges that greet us each day.

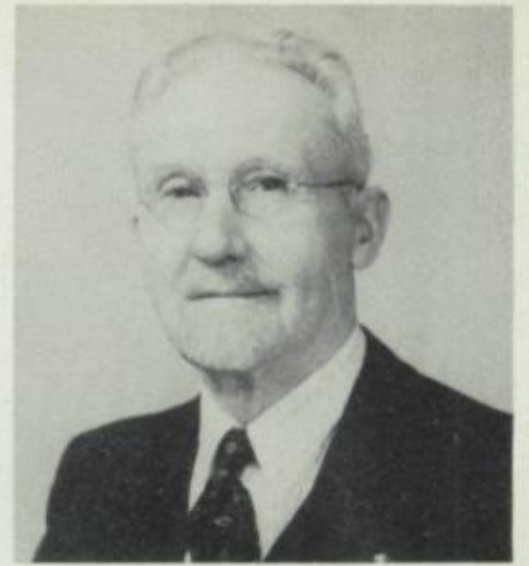

We find that our math, chemistry, and science classes are full to overflowing. Students each day seek advice as to what courses they should pursue in order to meet their needs due to the emergency. Our commercial classes are called upon to furnish, at the shortest notice, workers for every type of industrial enterprise. In all departments there is an increased stress to meet conditions.

To meet these changes we are streamlining our courses. We frequently give math courses in half the time we formerly did, since students are often-times called upon to take examinations for important posts in the industrial world, as well as for military duty, upon the shortest possible notice. When these problems arise, we plan a course of action to solve them. Literally, we depart from the traditional, going into the experimental field to find the help the student needs.

A seriousness not always present in the past pervades the atmosphere in this year 1942-43. Students, as well as teachers, realize the necessity for an "all-out" effort to give to our country the help she deserves and the homage we owe for our protection. Everything else is beside the issue.

We scrap the old and traditional and willingly plunge into the experimental and new in order to solve the problems that face us. We are attempting to make an "all-out" school program in the Victory Pattern. Success to all students and teachers, who are pledged to the same endeavor!

Senior Class

This year our class enrollment dropped to ninety-eight. Many of our boys have been called for service in the armed forces. The rest of us have taken part-time positions, helped in the scrap-metal drives, and sold and purchased war bonds.

It was not possible to have the usual Senior activities this year and we sacrificed willingly many of the pleasures to which we had looked forward for three years. Our Senior play and Senior Ditch Day had to be eliminated because of transportation difficulties.

We did manage to have the yearly Faculty-Senior basketball games before gas rationing went into effect, and we followed the example of last year's Seniors by defeating the faculty. Both games were hard-fought and were enjoyed by the spectators and contestants.

Plans for the Senior banquet had to be abandoned but we had a Prom on May 21 that will be a happy memory for every Senior who was able to be there. Our Baccalaureate services were held on May 30, and the last day of school, June 4, saw us putting aside our books to start forth to find our place in the national effort to bring World War II to a speedy conclusion.

Junior

The Junior class is the smallest in size, but there is no spirit lacking. We have accomplished a great deal during this last year and no class can boast of such a high proportion of honor students. Many girls and boys in our class received athletic-letter awards and we have outstanding musicians.

School had scarcely begun when Mr. Dusel, our class sponsor, joined Uncle Sam as an instructor in the U. S. Army Air Forces. Several boys from our class have also joined the armed forces.

Class

Mrs. Dusel assumed her husband's place as our sponsor, and, under her able leadership we formulated plans for a Senior Prom.

The Juniors are justly proud of their record for buying war bonds and stamps, collecting scrap metal, acting as air raid wardens, and for their very patriotic attitude.

It was difficult to raise money for the usual Senior festivities at the end of the year as it was necessary to omit the Junior play. However, we feel that with all our energies concentrated on doing our part in helping to win the war, this has been our most successful year.

Sophomore

One hundred and twenty-two Sophomores forgot the war during the first day of school and concentrated upon initiating the poor Freshmen. The newcomers looked like Indians on the war-path—even to the tribal costumes.

Since the first day of school the war has been uppermost in our thoughts and we have made many sacrifices to do our part. The first change in our social activities, due to the war, was an afternoon Freshman Reception.

Class

Afternoon parties are a necessity because of the tire and gasoline rationing. The reception took place on November 13 and climaxed Baby Day.

The Sophomores received a great honor this year by having a member, Patty Sylva, elected Victory Queen.

All the members of our class have been buying United States War Bonds and Stamps and we have been contributing to the war effort in every way that we can.

Freshman

The Freshman class began its career this year with one hundred and thirty-five members. We received a very thorough initiation on our first day at school. However, the Sophomores soon took pity on us and allowed us to try to find our niches in school life. We discovered that the war had brought many changes in faculty, classes, and social functions.

The reception given for us on the afternoon of November 13 was enjoyed by every Freshman. The music for dancing was provided by Mr. Dusel, Mr. Barron, Mr. Swan and Mr. Cardwell.

Class

We gave a return party to the Sophomores on January 22. Lorraine Lavagnino was in charge of arrangements. Music was provided by Mr. Swan and Mr. Barron. The theme for the gym decorations was "United for Victory."

The annual picnic at Phoenix Lake was abandoned because of tire and gasoline rationing.

Mr. Robinson, our class sponsor, appointed Freshmen Minute Men who spoke once a week in all Freshmen English classes in an effort to encourage everyone to buy War Bonds.

Wildcat

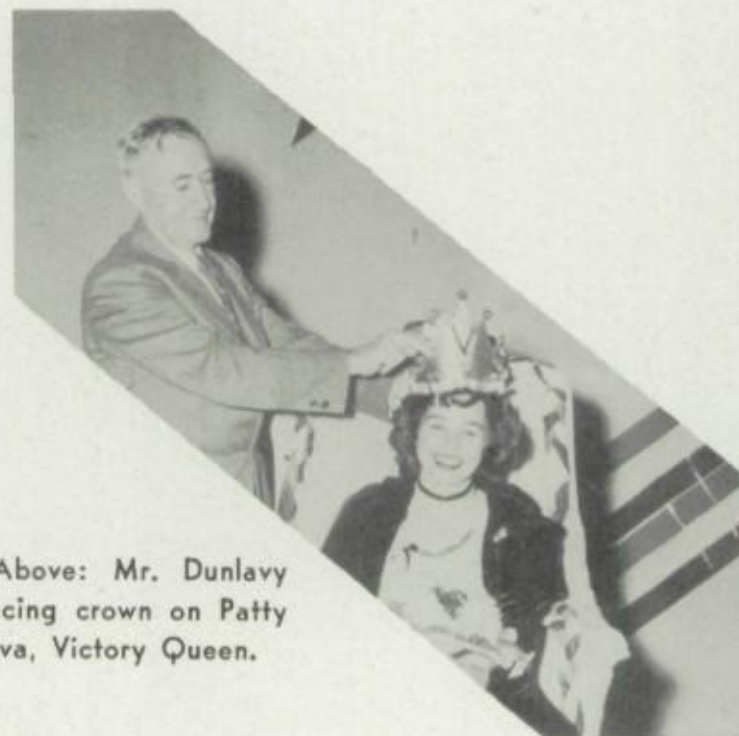

The Wildcat has carried on the usual routine activities of a high school newspaper and has stressed a patriotic theme in every issue. Mr. Dunlavy asked that every school organization make some contribution to the national welfare and we are proud of our efforts.

The promotion of the sale of War Bonds and Stamps became a fetish with the Wildcat staff and we sponsored a Victory Bond Drive just before the New Year. Each person who bought a stamp or bond was allowed to cast a vote for a Victory Queen. Patty Sylva won the contest and the coronation ceremonies were held in the gym during the Victory Dance. This Victory Queen Contest netted $2,035.75 in bonds and stamps.

We have given publicity to the Junior Red Cross and the Future Farmers in all their campaigns to secure materials for our armed forces. We have worked hard to support all other school organizations and special credit must be given to our editor, Margaret McConnell, for the hours she spent each day planning and editing our paper. Mr. Dusel, our first adviser, and Mrs. Dusel, his successor, also deserve much commendation.

Green and Gold

In this year book we have tried to record all the activities of our school year. The school has entered wholeheartedly into the war effort and we hope we have shown how hard each unit has worked to participate in the Victory program of the nation.

The financing of our annual was a difficult problem this year because many of our usual money-raising activities had to be curtailed. We did have the food concession at several football games and sponsored the annual Senior-Faculty basketball game.

We held a snapshot contest and awarded prizes of defense stamps for the funniest picture, the most serious picture, and the snapshot having the best composition. The results of the contest may be seen in this yearbook.

The faculty, office force, maintenance employees, and student body suffered many changes during the year. We have endeavored to keep up with the new people but were forced to go to press so early that we haven't been able to record all the shifts in personnel.

Future Farmers

The Sonora Future Farmers' Club, No. 193, entered its fourth year with forty members and a very ambitious program of work. We are part of a nation-wide organization of high school, vocational agriculture students learning to do practical farm work, raise better livestock, and develop rural leadership.

Our projects have consisted of beef cattle, hogs, and poultry. We are constantly increasing our production of livestock feed and food for human consumption, in keeping with the war program. We have doubled the size of our grain field by cutting and burning brush; we planted a victory garden near the ag. building, filled the space in front of the new ag. shop, and built a concrete retaining wall. The chapter also built a small brooder house and raised 200 New Hampshire chicks.

The new ag. shop, now being occupied for the second year, has proved to be very valuable for farm machinery repairs as well as for making tools and other useful articles. In spite of a serious shortage of tools and other materials, ag. mechanics has shown much improvement during this year.

Some of the outstanding home projects owned by our members are as follows: Fred Cavagnaro, seven head of beef cattle; James Campbell, four head of cattle and two hogs; Wilbur Black, four head of dairy cattle; Don Kole, two head of beef cattle, a mare, and colt; John Fraguero, four head of cattle; and Joe Uvelli, three dairy cattle, one pig, and an acre of vegetables. Don Kole, one of our members, has, with the help of his uncle, Julius Verkuyl, plowed and seeded some oats on land rented by the F. F. A. Chapter.

Coach Larry Fiorini's 1942 football squad enjoyed a very successful season with a fine record marred only by an early-season setback at the hands of Modesto. The team's fast, heavy line and hard-charging backfield formed a very smooth, well-coordinated unit.

Because of war-time travel restrictions, the team was denied the use of school buses, and had a difficult time solving the transportation problem.

Perhaps the Wildcats' greatest achievement was the winning of the coveted 20-30 Club football trophy as a permanent possession. This trophy was acquired as a result of the Armistice Day victory over Oakdale. Pictured above, right hand corner, is Student Body President Ed Gorgas, accepting the trophy from Coach Fiorini.
